Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 08 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly fine with some sunshine, perhaps cloudier in the west.

Today:
A mainly fine and warm day with most seeing some some sunny spells, although western parts in particular may be cloudier at times, perhaps giving the odd spot of drizzle in the Pennines later. Light winds expected throughout. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Most areas should stay dry overnight with some clear periods, although western parts may again remain on the cloudy side, perhaps with the odd spot of rain at times. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Wednesday:
Probably a warmer but cloudier day on the whole. Most areas should stay dry throughout, although there is a small chance of isolated showers developing later. Becoming breezier. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Often rather cloudy through this period, although eastern parts in particular should still see some brighter spells. Breezy at first, but winds easing into the weekend, with temperatures climbing.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.